

ABSTRACT

An improved technique of allowing terminal emulators to communicate with remotely located hosts comprises the steps of communicating first with a server which downloads communications software to the terminal emulator. The communications software is then utilized to communicate with the host, and screens of information downloaded by the host are recognized by the NC terminal. The terminal then communicates with the server to determine how to present such downloaded screens to a user.